To educate your students about the history and life ways of Louisiana's Caddo Indians, bring your class to the Louisiana State Exhibit Museum for a half hour long CADDO LORE program where Caddo Indian archaeology, language, customs, and traditions will be illustrated and discussed. Then take your class on a self-tour of the museum's Pre-history Gallery. Be seated in the museum auditorium by 10:00 a.m. so that your students will have an opportunity to learn about the Caddo, in particular, and Native Americans in general. Make your reservations today.

The Louisiana State Exhibit Museum is an agency of the Department of State, Fox McKeithen, Secretary of State. Administrator of the Museum is Forrest Dunn. The building is handicap accessible, and free parking is provided.
